

Silver Surfer is a tier 1 aura farmer

First thing I want to say is that datpiff/soundcloud post I made the other day might be my favorite post I've thrown up so far. Was genuinely fun doing it taking a trip down memory lane and it came out alright. On the flip side is the post I did about The White Tiger, yesterday, that one is pretty shitty. I say that cause my heart wasn't in it for real and as I did it I felt like I was checking a box and just doing it to do it so it came out pretty shit/lackluster and didn't do that book justice at all. But we live and we learn. I saw something recently that said (im paraphrasing) "your goals are directions not finish lines" and I really fw that cause I'm an all or nothing typa cat and yesterday's post was a result of me treating my goal of posting on here consistency as a finish line instead of a direction / movement I want to head in. I will be more aware of this going forward and if I feel like I'm making something because I have to and not cuz I want to for this site I'll put the fries in the bag.

Pats Superbowl Reflection

One thing I realized I never yapped about on here was my thoughts on the super bowl we got fucking manhandled in. Tbh I wasn't really upset or mad nothing like that more so just disappointed the game itself was so boring and miserable that had to have been one of the worst super bowls in a long time. At least with the Eagles blowing out the Chiefs last year it was like fuck the chiefs at least its fun to watch them lose. We just punched way above our weight class this year I'm not gonna say our run was a "fluke" because we did what we could do we played AND beat who was in front of us. At the same time though I can 100% acknowledge our path was easier and that the real super bowl took place in the NFC championship game between the Seahawks and the Rams. I'm really excited to play a tough schedule next year and see how we make out and at the core of it all I'm just grateful to have something to be excited about again as a pats fan fr.

Now I'm gonna be blunt about shit I think we need to fix (which I talked about before but want to reiterate and modify after getting blitzed in the super bowl) for next season. Eliot Wolf YOU are on the clock buddy. 5 years or whatever it has been of lackluster work and now he lucked into the superbowl so I'm sure hes at home stroking his shit thinking hes some sort of matermind. Nah my guy you have SERIOUS holes on this roster you need to fix and this draft + free agency will decide your job in my eyes (although Kraft will probs keep bro around regardless). The defense must be kept together (upgrade pass rush) and you have to go bolster our offense in both the OL and skill positions. Lock in time buddy.

Now during the SuperBowl and immediately after I was calling for Mcdaniels to be fired and said he is a terrorist. Two weeks later, now having some time to think, I am still calling Mcdaniels a terrorist and calling for his job. I get his Oline was swiss cheese, his wide receiver room tender BBQ ribs putting up Tony Snell statlines, and the lights were too bright for his QB, but we have seen enough of this guy to know what he really is. He is an uninventive, play recycling, bad play calling OC who just simply does not cut it in today's league of cutting edge offensive masterminds. That's really all I have to say to that he won't go but I need him gone. Maybe by some miracle if we get a better OL and some weapons he ups his game but I'm very cynical. Time will tell. I'll tell you one thing leaving my football team's fate in the hands of him and Eliot Wolf does NOT let me rest easy at night.

Drake Maye man. MVP until the playoffs came and he turned into a pumpkin. Playing the defenses he did with the offense (and OC) he had around him I get it that shit was hard, but there were still many instances of him shooting himself in the foot. None of this changes the fact I am super geeked about Drake Maye and excited for him to come out next season and ball out AGAIN and prove all these losers wrong who are now for some reason writing him off as ass. One thing I will say though is he needs to prove to me he can do it in the bright lights and big moments. I watched Tom Brady do it my whole life so I'm spoiled, but to follow in his footsteps Drake next season you gotta show me you got that same clutch DAWG in you. Simple.

Adam Silver its Time to Go

Lol this is all probably sounding mad negative between Mcdaniel's and Silver but I am so sick of Adam Silver's NBA man. All-star weekend was actually pretty solid this year, so shoutout him for getting a format going that will get guys playing a bit harder flowers 4 that. But overall this guy just doesn't prioritize the game of BASKETBALL as the commissioner of the NBA. He's completely lost site of what the league is about and is too busy catering to gambling companies, sponsors, to focus on the purity of the game itself. Two separate incidents pushed me over the edge on him. The first being his dumb ass "tournament for the #1 pick to stop tanking bit (which is so illogical and would not work) and his statements about how the NBA is a "highlights" league and how people want "content" and not basketball. First I'll address the tanking thing. I actually agree we need to switch from the system we have now because the lottery 100% encourages tanking. Because no team is locked into a pick, more teams are incentivized to tank and then hope luck comes their way in the lottery and they sneak into the top 3. The NFL has the perfect system imo. There's always going to be teams that tank, that is the simple reality of the league. Let your record decide your draft pick, no lottery and that way teams know where they will be picking and hopefully less teams tank cause they can't chance into a top pick. The tourney idea is hella dumb cause you would get play in teams tanking to be lottery instead and then you never get the teams that actually need it the top pick. The whole "make rookies free agents" bit is also stupid asf cause it just completely puts small market teams on ice.

It's time we make the main thing the main thing again when it comes to the league and Adam Silver is doing the opposite of that. Need a commish that is gonna put the integrity and beauty of the game at the focus and pedestal and worry about hoops and not other bs.