

Pats to tha MF BOWL: Talking pats

23:06 - From Bed

Man idk if it's cause I'm out here in Luxembourg surrounded by people who don't give a fuck about american football or what it is bu the fact the Pats are going back to the super bowl isn't hitting me yet the way that it should. I am fucking hyped but i feel like i should really be off the walls. I want today's post to the site to be talking ball about the pats getting my opinions off and some shit I hope to see in the bowl. Win or lose this season has been so above and beyond what I expected man especially after came out and lost to the fucking raiders lmao so I just am amped to have my squad in it and to see what the future holds for us.

Now I'm gonna just rip a bunch of pats takes/vibes in no order:

- The seahawks are a fucking squad man. Sam Darnold has looked fucking money too these last couple games (granted the 49ers game you coulda put a pumpkin at QB and they still win). I think the only way we win these games is by acknowledging Darnold has been a Jekyll and Hyde guy in terms of turnovers and you gotta try everything to get this guy unsettled early and force a turnover or two out of him.
- This goes right into my next point about the defense. The defense has been fucking hooping this playoffs as we all know, and Zak Kuhr needs to continue to bring these elaborate blitzes and show these simulated pressures to get Sam Darnold off his game early. Now I do have serious real concerns about our defense as well. While they have played amazing, they have been able to fucking load UP on every quarterback we played whether it was because the QB themselves was ass (Stroud, Stidham, Stroud again) our their OLINe reeked (Herbert). This has allowed them to be elite against the run as the safeties are playing only 10 yards deep and a lot of times we're bring 5 or more guys. I'm interested to see if this level of play from our defense will hold against an elite OLINe and a finely tuned offense called by genius Klint Kubiak and a very capable arm in Darnold. We haven't played an offense/QB anywhere near the Seahawks level so far. I'm not saying our defense can't shut them down, but I am really skeptical that we can be DOMINANT like we have been these last 3 games.

- This means our offense is going to have to wake the fuck up if we're gonna win this game. Drake has played 3 elite defenses. I know. He has a terrorist calling plays at OC. I know. Campbell/wilson have repeatedly turned into pumpkins in the postseason. I know. Despite all of this, Drake needs to find a fucking way to step up and let his fucking NUTS DRAG. I loved what he did with his legs in Denver. Now he needs to eliminate all of these misses hes having in the passing game that were automatic in the regular season. I understand full well how difficult it must be playing in a system where the OC wants you to throw a screen plant or 5 yard curl on everyplay but Drake you are special and to win this game you are going to have to make that magic we saw all regular season happen on your own accord /creativity.
- I have more on McDaniels down below, but holy shit man what a fucking joke man. Get the fucking fullback off the field, spread guys out, and let drake cook man. If I see Austin Hooper and Jack Westover on my screen as much as I did in Denver in the Super Bowl I am going to crash out.
- It's actually fucking insane we're going to the big dance this year man. Maye is so young, and him winning/losing this game isn't going to change his special future. But holy shit if he can have a breakout playoff game in the bowl and really be the guy we know he is and lead us to a SB its going to be borderline unbelievable. +8000 to win the bowl at the beginning of the year now look at us. Cupcake ass schedule i know but u play who is in front of u man thats all u can do. One more game to cement legacies and make history.

Looking beyond the Bowl

- This team has so many holes. I think we have a real chance to win it, but I hope that this run to the bowl doesn't leave the front office complacent in regards to getting aggressive in the draft and free agency. The first things that come to mind on the offensive side of the ball is getting a real offensive threat. Now I don't care if its an explosive tight end (Hunter Henry is a guy but man he is on his way out) or a wide out but that is near the top of the list. Diggs has been great, and the supporting cast of Bouttem Douglas, Williams, and HEnry have all had there moments but to continue the success of this year going into next year (against a much tougher schedule) we need to get at least one guy that is a legit gamebreaker. Outside of that on the offensive side of the ball, the offensive line COULD potentially be shuffled / changed a bit. Wilson and Campbell are both young, so I don't HATE letting this group rock, but I also can really get behind getting a legit left guard in the draft and moving Campbell to his real position of left tackle and getting him off the edge where he has had trouble at times.
- Defensively: Our secondary is fucking nice. Woodson, Hawkins, stepped up in such a big way this year. Marcus Jones is a fucking baller #hesdonemiraclesonme and is the heart and soul of this team. Gonzo is a fucking stud, and Davis is a fine #2. I'm not as crazy about him though, he had some big penalties in bad spots this year. I like our linebacking core, although Spillane is aging. Gibbens and Eliss are fucking dawgs tho I rlly like where that position group is at. This leaves us with what I think is the most pressing matter the pats front office has to address, THE PASS RUSH!!! In the playoffs we have been great, and Chaisson has been fucking HOOPING. But if we went out and got a guy like Maxx Crosby or a legit edge rusher to CONSISTENTLY generate pressure our defense would be damn near complete. Barmore and Williams in the middle is beautiful. Resign Chaison, then go and blow the fucking bag on a DEMON coming off the edge. If i have one wish for our offseason that is it (or changing OCs but more on that inna second).

- I am so sick of Josh Mcdaniels man. This guy is so far behind in a league where you have so many offensive masterminds. You have the best young GUNSLINGER in the league, but he continuously this season goes run-run-pass or calls short passing game shit. We need an OC that is going to unleash Drake and let him fucking rip it. I have seen enough RB screens, HB Dives, and wideout quick slants to last a lifetime this season. Please man he is not going to change. I get our offense was good this year but this is the perfect example when it comes to complacency going into next year with a much tougher schedule. You cannot call predictable bullshit against good teams (as we have seen in the playoffs). GET A REAL OC
